

SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING STATEMENT FOR SUBSEA 7 FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 2019

Subsea 7's Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement sets out the steps Subsea 7 has taken to address the risk of slavery and human trafficking taking place within its own operations and supply chains.

This statement is made on behalf of the Subsea 7 Group, including those members of the Group listed in the Appendix.

These suppliers provide a broad range of materials and services, ranging from non-operational, office- and site-based services such as cleaning and security, through the provision of agency staff for offshore work, to pipeline and fabrication, vessel fabrication, logistics, and a whole range of construction and fabrication services and material supplies.

B. EXISTING POLICIES AND PROCEDURES IN RELATION TO MODERN SLAVERY

Human Rights Policy Statement

As part of our response to the Modern Slavery Act, we developed a Group-wide Human Rights policy, to pull together our existing policies, procedures and commitments under one coherent human rights policy and programme and ensure that modern slavery and human trafficking risks are more explicitly addressed. In 2018 this policy statement was launched across Subsea 7. This is one of our three highest level policy statements. It sits alongside our Ethics Policy Statement and HSEQ Policy Statement, and all three statements are displayed prominently at our offices and sites.

Our Human Rights Policy Statement and Ethics Policy Statement, along with our Code of Conduct and Code of Conduct for Suppliers, can be found at:

<https://www.subsea7.com/en/about-us/labour-practices-and-human-rights.html>

<https://www.subsea7.com/en/about-us/business-ethics.html>

Code of Conduct

The Subsea 7 Code of Conduct (the Code) is applicable to all personnel working for and on behalf of Subsea 7 globally, including direct employees and agency and contract staff. The Code sets out our commitment to conducting business fairly and ethically, including by treating our employees, clients, contractors and suppliers fairly and with respect. It also provides guidance on how to ensure we uphold our commitments. It was refreshed in 2019. Enhancements to the Code of Conduct included more prominent and engaging sections on human trafficking, forced labour and other human rights abuses.

All Subsea 7 direct employees are required to sign up to the Code of Conduct on joining the business.

Code of Conduct for Suppliers

The Subsea 7 Code of Conduct for Suppliers is incorporated into our standard terms and conditions for suppliers and was refreshed in 2019. It includes mutual commitments to:

- Ethical business conduct, including with regard to anti-corruption
- Health, safety and security.
- Human rights and fair and lawful employment practices across Subsea 7 and throughout our supply chain.
- As a minimum, complying with national legal requirements regarding wages and working hours.
- Support the International Labour Organisation's standards regarding child labour and minimum age.
- Prevent modern slavery and human trafficking anywhere in our business or supply chain.
- Uphold the same standards when dealing with employees, contract staff and sub-contractors.

Supply Chain Management Procedures

We have robust pre-qualification procedures for our direct suppliers, and for suppliers from high-risk countries this includes a risk screening and due diligence process. They are contractually required to comply with our policies in relation to safety, quality, environmental and business ethics, including anti-corruption and human rights; and to require their own suppliers to operate to the same standards.

If we became aware of slavery or human trafficking concerns within our supply chain, we would seek to work with the relevant suppliers to improve conditions for their workforce. We would reserve the right to deselect suppliers if they were to fail to make the required improvements within a reasonable timeframe.

Speak Up Policy

Subsea 7 staff and suppliers are encouraged to raise concerns about behaviour inconsistent with the above commitments. We have a whistle-blowing policy, which was revised in 2019 to provide more information about the whole process, including how to raise a concern, how the case will be handled, and how the person speaking up will be protected. We renamed it as the Speak Up Policy, to make it more engaging and help avoid any stigma associated with the term "whistle-blowing", which might discourage people from coming forward. We have an externally managed Safecall confidential reporting line, as well as other channels for raising concerns, all of which are widely communicated. We also have procedures for investigating concerns reported via these channels.

To date, Subsea 7 has received no reports of concerns regarding slavery or human trafficking in our operations (including our supply chain). If any such issues were reported to us, we would undertake an urgent, thorough investigation into the concerns raised under the supervision of the Executive Ethics Committee. If the investigation confirmed the concerns, we would put in place robust action plans to address the issue and protect the victims.

C. RESPONDING TO THE MODERN SLAVERY ACT

At the direction of the Executive Ethics Committee, Subsea 7 established a cross-functional working group, under the sponsorship of the Executive Director of Human Resources and the General Counsel, to assess and respond to the requirements of the Modern Slavery Act 2015. The members of that working group include the Subsea 7 group heads of Supply Chain Management, Corporate Human Resources, Offshore Staffing, and Compliance and Ethics.

In 2017 we engaged GoodCorporation to provide independent, expert advice, and to help us deliver training and design and perform a risk assessment. GoodCorporation is a firm that specialises in helping organisations to assess and manage corporate responsibility and business ethics risks, including human rights and corruption risks.

We:

- Developed a human rights and modern slavery compliance clause for insertion in contracts with suppliers.
- Developed human rights and modern slavery questions for insertion in our supplier due diligence questionnaire.
- Included human rights and adverse media alerts in the tool that we use to screen medium- and high-risk suppliers.
- With help from GoodCorporation and input from key stakeholders across our business and most of our key geographies, conducted a risk assessment to help us identify categories of staff and supplier that might constitute a higher modern slavery risk. This risk assessment included direct suppliers to Subsea 7, and it also considered where risks might exist further down the supply-chain.
- With GoodCorporation's help, delivered a half-day education workshop attended by key managers within Human Resources and Supply Chain Management. Further training will be provided as and when we identify other individuals and roles most likely to be in a position to identify and address potential modern slavery risks.

In 2019 Subsea 7 became signatories of the UN Global Compact in which the United Nations set out principles covering human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. This marked our commitment to fair and lawful employment practices across our Company and throughout our supply chain. We also signed and committed to supporting the 10 Worker Welfare Principles set out by the Building Responsibly organisation, a global business-led coalition committed to promoting the rights and welfare of workers across the Engineering and Construction industry.

In 2019 we established a new 'Sustainability' Value that specifically focuses on our environmental and societal behaviours and defines Human Rights & Labour Practices as one of our 6 priorities. We formed a Working Group with senior leaders from functions across the Company who set the strategic direction for providing working conditions aligned with international best practice with respect to human and labour rights.

D. ASSESSMENT OF MODERN SLAVERY RISKS IN OUR OWN ORGANISATION AND OUR SUPPLY CHAIN

Our risk assessment process will continue to evolve and mature. It has already confirmed that some of our initial assumptions and areas of focus are appropriate, namely:

- The modern slavery risks within our own workforce are generally perceived to be low, but the risks cannot be ignored, and we need to do more work to be sure that we have assessed the risks correctly and have taken the right steps to mitigate or guard against them.
- Despite the above:
 - Staff sourced from external agencies to work in our offshore operations may represent a risk, especially where those agencies are based in, or source people from high-risk countries.
 - Suppliers that manage staff working on Subsea 7 sites to provide certain services, such as catering, security, cleaning etc. may be relatively high risk, even in countries considered low risk.
- Suppliers of certain materials tend to be higher risk than many of our suppliers of services, as they may have long, opaque supply chains, which are much harder to assess and gain assurance about.
- Vessel fabrication services is a category that warrants further careful assessment, as such services can involve tough working conditions, subcontracting of work and a complex supply chain, and they represent a very significant amount of expenditure by Subsea 7.
- Two thirds of the 80 countries in which our suppliers are based are considered high-risk from a human rights and modern slavery perspective.
- The map of countries that are considered medium or high risk from a modern slavery perspective correlates to a significant extent with the Transparency International Corruption Perceptions Index, on the basis of which our supply chain management procedures already categorise suppliers as high- or medium-risk. This substantial correlation has made it easier for us to integrate slavery and human trafficking risk assessment (including due diligence questionnaires and online screening) and risk mitigation steps into what is a mature suite of supply chain management procedures. As our approach to identifying and managing modern slavery risk matures, we will take a more granular approach, including identifying countries and supplier categories that present a lower corruption risk but a higher modern slavery risk and may thus warrant special treatment.
- Although we cannot ignore risks further down our supply chain, in the short term we continue to prioritise our direct suppliers, and also suppliers and categories of supply that represent significant areas of expenditure.

As our programme develops, we will provide further updates to this statement.
